

Tony Hall

Senior Facilitator & Executive Coach

Tony is a Sydney-based facilitator and executive coach.

He possesses strong facilitation skills, having presented and designed many management and professional development programs over a 20-year period. He enjoys turning theory and ideas into something his audience finds practical and useable.

He is outgoing, down-to-earth, a good listener and concerned about both the wellbeing of his participants and the results demanded by the organisations who engage him.

Tony has worked exclusively with Adapt since 2003, facilitating the “On Time, In Control” Outlook, Lotus Notes & BlackBerry training programs, as well as providing executive coaching services to senior management.

His passion for delivering practical productivity processes in a fun and interesting way ensures that he always gets great results and creates long term behavioural change. Tony’s deep understanding of the productivity issues his participants face, and his experience and knowledge of productivity solutions and tools ensure he is in constant demand with our key clients.

He holds a Diploma of Teaching, is degree qualified with majors in Psychology & Education & has a Graduate Certificate in Change Management. He is currently learning how to draw.

I've used Tony Hall and Adapt in three organisations to date and each time, he's provided great value for money and direct business results. I've had feedback from all levels within the organisation from an office junior to the Managing Director, that Tony's training has exceeded their expectations.
